INTRODUCTION

Welcome to the Forty-niners wagon train! You have been asked here to lead eight wagons and forty people west to the gold fields of California.

The year is 1849; the day is the 1st of May. It is sunny and warm. From the stores of St. Louis you have been equipped with wagons, oxen, food, water, guns, and ammunition. Extra supplies can be bought now or along the way.

You have $1000 to buy any extras.

The area you will have to cross is rugged and full of dangers. Beware of high mountain passes and arid deserts.

There are already a number of trails heading west and quite a few forts to stop at. Follow these trails or make one of your own.

Your ultimate goal is to arrive safely in California and to FIND GOLD!

Press <ESC> to stop reading.

INDIAN CAMP

Campfire smoke spirals above a small Indian camp. There are dogs barking nearby and a few beaver pelts stretched to dry. Two braves tend a fire.

This is Osage territory.
